WaspTime : My scheduled backup keeps overwriting the same file name rather than creating a new file each time

Jason - 2017-04-10 - Version 7

The scheduled backup process is designed to use a date and time stamp in the filename. We have found, however, that if you do a manual backup, then edit that backup on the Scheduled Backups list to change it from Once to Daily or some other recurrence, it will retain the filename used from the original manual creation. Delete that scheduled backup entry and create a new one to have it go back to using the date and time stamped filenames.
